Dear Mr. Billings,

You did not get the camera because it went to Samarkand or Vietnam or someplace with the military owner. I have three others located.

The second one of which my camera shop knew needs repair. Before getting that and wondering about the success of the repair. I'm waiting to hear about another. I can get it if the man who owns it gets his wife's assent, because she gave it to him for a birthday present. It is almost unused.

The same camera without the power zoom is available on a rental basis or for purchase. It is said to have the same lens also. The only difference, I am told, is that the zoom is manual. However, I'd rather have the exact same thing, so I'm waiting for the decision of state.

I'll let you know.

Sincerely,

Harold Weisberg
